DECORATIVE ELEMENTS continued

1 Painted units are bordered with natural wood trims in this kitchen by Extreme Design. An island clad in grey marble adds another texture to the space, while complementing the dark grey units. extreme-design.co.uk 2 In this project by Shalini Misra, a black-painted steel and brass island from Officine Gullo is set off by a patchwork of hexagonal cement tiles. The industrial feel is softened by a wooden worktop. Glossy black units from Poliform line the back wall and bounce light around the space. officinegullo.com | poliformuk.com 3 Verdigris copper door panels on tall cupboards bring depth and texture to this kitchen by Ledbury Studio, tying in well with the black-stained ash cabinetry and contrasting warm-toned wooden floor, and echoing the mottled veining of the marble splashback. ledburystudio.com 4 This kitchen by Chamber Furniture spans the colour spectrum, with units in Farrow & Ball's 'Studio Green', brown marble worktops, a wooden parquet floor, and mirrored white display units. Soft pink walls help bring the scheme alive and unite the various elements. chamberfurniture.co.uk □
