Mark Taylor

Mark Taylor Design is a British manufacturer of bespoke furniture, cabinetry, specialist joinery and interior design. As well as traditional and contemporary handleless kitchens, the company can make furniture for bathrooms, bedrooms, studies and even staircases. This traditional in-frame kitchen with bespoke island incorporates an old butchers block as well as Satinato granite worktop. marktaylordesign.co.uk

Ledbury

Charlie Smallbone has been at the forefront of design since the 1980s, introducing modern day classics such as the hand-painted kitchen. Using traditional joinery methods and cutting edge modern design, Ledbury Studio's new collection blends the warmth and comfort of a traditional kitchen with a contemporary design ethic. A new addition to the range is the housekeeper's cupboard. ledburystudio.com

Sola Kitchens

Each design from Sola Kitchens is individually handcrafted by cabinet makers in Sweden. The family-owned company has been building kitchens for over 70 years, combining traditional techniques with the finest of materials to make bespoke furniture that lasts. Here is the Sletten in Gotland Grey design that features a custom-built golden extractor hood. solakitchens.com

Espresso

Founded in 2006, Espresso Design sources the latest products from manufacturers across Europe. The company aims to give clients access to the broadest range of materials, new design features and appliance technology. Shown here is a project in collaboration with Hudson Architects, featuring the Euromobil Filotabular kitchen with worktops in Corian Glacier white and stainless steel. espressodesign.co.uk
